The first-of-its-kind an international 24×7 helpline for patients suffering from pancreatic diseases was launched during the 10th International Advanced Therapeutic Endoscopy Symposium here on Saturday at Hotel Palladium.

The 24×7 helpline will help create awareness about the most neglected and vital organ of human body, the pancreas. In addition to remedies for acute attacks, the helpline will also provide free consultation for patients who want to know more about their existing pancreatic conditions. "This is a first-of-its-kind 24×7 international helpline that will patients from worldwide to provide free consultation about their pancreatic conditions. The aim is to connect the caller with the high quality doctor for tele consultation," said Dr. Vipulroy Rathod, Founder & Director, Endoscopy Asia.

The launch of the international 24×7 helpline for pancreas was attended by over 500 participating Gastroenterologist, Surgeons, Physicians performing Endoscopy including internationally renowned experts from 27 countries like Canada, United States, Netherlands, Belgium, France, Japan, Egypt and India in the two-day symposium.
